ENEMIES INSIDE ALBION?

Albion Knights Harden for Estragalean Title

New knightly lord, Calidore the Ancient of Elmet, is now known as the “Chivalric Non Pareil”. We at the Patriot hear it's Estragalean for “Most Chivalrous Knight Without Compare”. Join us next time when we judge his legend for ourselves! Please write in with your favourite Calidore tales.

NORHOLT – Strife in the Palace!

What does it mean to have a (let's whisper it) fæ for a liege? Who does he love most? The people have looked up to him for so long. What should they think? The High King seems to choose only one fæ house for Albion. Which one sits in Norholt? Stand, and think of Albion! Be you friend or foe?

Mummy, what's a fæ?

Children across all of Albion have asked this question! We at the Patriot understand that fæ are what elves are descended from. The oldest of them have been around for thousands of years! With lots of power comes lots of arrogance (in the bad ones) or friendliness to us mortals (in the good ones). Know your Albion fæ! Is it a pushy Heron or an elegant Swan? See her grace, Graziella Whitcombe, for more information! She knows what's best here! She put the People before personal power by abdicating the throne last winter.

DEIRA – Who is “Queen Matilda”?

Matilda was a queen of Deira in olden times and known to be a great warrior. She's not King Beaumont, Albion's handsome and talented general, but we at the Patriot hear she is honourable. What job will she have next?

See previous editions for commentary on the goodness of her household (the dress scandal intended to shame good Queen Margaery will not be forgot!).

MARRIAGES

The Patriot believes that marriage is really quite lovely but if there are too many over the next year then we'll run out of pages. Though if some are scandalous then please write and tell us. In the people's interest, of course.

BERNICIA, NORHOLT & DEIRA – Winter is coming

We know it's a way off yet but after last year we're a bit worried! To our cousins in the north, we're praying Sastrines sees no need for snow!

Corrections : None to report. We do apologise to Lady Teagan, however, for any ill-fitting suitors knocking at her doors after last month's edition. Were any good, though? We'd really get behind some hard, deep and faithful worship. Oh, the Champion!
