THE MARCH TO ERIN

High King Rudraigh – uncertainty banished!

Chosen by the stunning Lady of the Lake, the new High Monarch of Albion is Rudraigh of Cornwall. Sure to bring the firm hand of law to his decisions, High King Rudraigh is famous for his dutiful commitment and traditional outlook. Here's to a fine reign and prosperity for the people of Albion!

Sausage pressure reduced for long-serving Hand

King Quentyn of Anglia loses a few “desirable bachelor” marks now a new high monarch is in place but we are still looking forward to wedding nuptials. Will it be this summer? We await rumours of his courting successes!

THE FATE OF THE WORLDS

At the Patriot we like to make sure the focus is on the people of Albion. Sometimes things outside the borders are big news so here's a little of that:

High King Rudraigh is heading to Erin to stand by our colourful cousins of the Fir Cruthen and to keep those wicked fae (the actually wicked ones, not the nicer ones the mortal nations are allied with) away from the Tree of Life. Life's for all good people, you scabby-tipped pricks, so hands off!

Here's to those bonny and brave bastards who'll be battering butt-scented bad 'uns in Erin.

ANOTHER LADY OF BLADES?

The Patriot learned of High Queen Beatrice. She ruled ancient Albion with a bright sword to match the beauty of her eyes! We hope there are fewer tales of “fisting” in her past than in that of King Duncan. Mind your manners, old Albion! Perhaps his tale will influence brothel fashions in 1118?

King Gallad welcomes migrant elves

Elmet workforce boosted by itinerant “noble” house who come to live in forest and wish to plant trees. A source close to Steward Braunley said “Elmet has been advertising for hard working locals to come work the land around Wild Wood for some time with no success so we’re glad that the Thorn folk have decided to apply, and we welcome them to Elmet”. The deal is said to represent excellent value for the economy and is sure to please his majesty when he returns from crusade.

Solkar's Corner: Gethan tries to trick a ritual circle with his evil cunning!

Sick-looking Gethan Gaharis compensates for the rotting contents of his heart by trying to twist ritual circles against Albion and its allies. Controversially prevented from this by some bright heroes, Albion's working to repair the damage. When will he be bored of losing? Perhaps bored to death will be fitting punishment!

Sacrifice for Albion

The Lady Morgaine, the dark lady of wisdom and knowledge, is cast from the shores of Albion for past deeds. Next month we'll attempt a profile piece.
